Subject index*

A

Abstracts of papers presented at APIC '81, 87
Acute care institution, prevalence survey as infection surveillance method in (Latham et al.), 76
Air control in hospital intensive care units, inappropriate federal standards for (Rutala, Sarubbi, and Krantz), 123 (Commentary)

B

Bacilli, gram-negative, colonization of oropharynx by, as antecedent to nosocomial pneumonia (Penn, Sanders, and Sanders), 25
Bacteremias, Serratia marcescens, in intensive care unit, contaminated heparinized saline solution as reservoir (Cleary, MacIntyre, and Castro), 107
Bacteria, gram-negative, persistent carriage of, on hands (Larson), 112

C

Carriage, persistent, of gram-negative bacteria on hands (Larson), 112
Chemotherapy, infectiousness of pulmonary tuberculosis after starting (Noble), 6
Cleaning agent, disinfectant, general purpose, adventures and advice to those choosing (Roberts), 124 (Commentary)
Contaminated dialysate warming water, nosocomial peritonitis related to (Ashline, Stevens, and Carter), 50 (Brief report) heparinized saline solution as reservoir in Serratia marcescens bacteremias in intensive care unit (Cleary, MacIntyre, and Castro), 107
Control measures, implementing (Bryan and Deever), 101; see also specific controls

Dialysate warming water, contaminated, nosocomial peritonitis related to (Ashline, Stevens, and Carter), 50 (Brief report)
Disinfectant cleaning agent, general purpose, adventures and advice to those choosing (Roberts), 124 (Commentary)

F

Federal standards, inappropriate, for air control in hospital intensive care units (Rutala, Sarubbi, and Krantz), 123 (Commentary)

G

Gram-negative bacilli, colonization of oropharynx by, as major antecedent to nosocomial pneumonia (Penn, Sanders, and Sanders), 25 bacteria, persistent carriage of, on hands (Larson), 112

H

Heparinized saline solution, contaminated, as reservoir in Serratia marcescens bacteremias in intensive care unit (Cleary, MacIntyre, and Castro), 107
Hepatitis B, risk of, among phlebotomists (Craig, Gribble, and Suarez), 11
Hospital infection control program, evaluation of efficacy (Sharbaugh), 35 intensive care units, air control in, inappropriate federal standards for (Rutala, Sarubbi, and Krantz), 123 (Commentary) quality assurance program, integrated, infection control as quality control in (Fifer), 120 (Brief report)
Host factors and prosthetic joint infection (Kegel-Szerejko et al.), 43

I

Implementing control measures (Bryan and Deever), 101
Infection control and clinical thermometry: perforation of soft plastic thermometer sheaths during temperature measurement (Valenti and Takacs), 1 practices in physical therapy (McGuckin et al.), 18 (Brief report) program, hospital, evaluation of efficacy (Sharbaugh), 35 as quality control in integrated hospital quality assurance program (Fifer), 120 (Brief report) nosocomial, control: scope and implications for health care (White), 61 prosthetic joint, and host factors (Kegel-Szerejko et al.), 43 surveillance by medical record chart review, disadvantages of (Birnbaum and King), 15
by prevalence survey in acute and long-term care institution (Latham et al.), 76
Infectiousness of pulmonary tuberculosis after starting chemotherapy (Noble), 6
Intensive care unit(s), hospital, air control in, inappropriate federal standards for (Rutala, Sarubbi, and Krantz), 123 (Commentary)
Serratia marcescens bacteremias in, contaminated heparinized saline solution as reservoir (Cleary, MacIntyre, and Castro), 107

L

Long-term care institution, prevalence survey as infection surveillance method in (Latham et al.), 76

M

Medical record chart, infection surveillance by review of, disadvantages (Birnbaum and King), 15

N

Nosocomial infection control: scope and implications for health care (White), 61

*February, pp. 1-24; May, pp. 25-60; August, pp. 61-100; November, pp. 101-140.

Nosocomial—cont'd peritonitis related to contaminated dialysate warming water (Ashline, Stevens, and Carter), 50 (Brief report) pneumonia, colonization of oropharynx with gram-negative bacilli as major antecedent (Penn, Sanders, and Sanders), 25 pseudoepidemics and pseudoinfections as increasing problem (Kusek), 70

O

Oropharynx, colonization of, with gram-negative baccilli, as major antecedent to nosocomial pneumonia (Penn, Sanders, and Sanders), 25

P

Peritonitis, nosocomial, related to contaminated dialysate warming water (Ashline, Stevens, and Carter), 50 (Brief report)
Phlebotomists, risk of hepatitis B among (Craig, Gribble, and Suarez), 11
Physical therapy, infection control practices in (McGuckin et al.), 18 (Brief report)
Plastic thermometer sheaths, soft, perforation during temperature measurement, and infection control (Valenti and Takacs), 1
Pneumonia, nosocomial, colonization of oropharynx with gram-negative bacilli as major antecedent (Penn, Sanders, and Sanders), 25
Prevalence survey as infection surveillance method in acute and long-term care institution (Latham et al.), 76
Prosthetic joint infection and host factors (Kegel-Szerejko et al.), 43
Pseudoepidemics and pseudoinfections, nosocomial, as increasing problem (Kusek), 70
Pulmonary tuberculosis, infectiousness of, after starting chemotherapy (Noble), 6

Q

Quality control, infection control as, in integrated hospital quality assurance program (Fifer), 120 (Brief report)

R

Record chart, medical, infection surveillance by review of, disadvantages (Birnbaum and King), 15
Risk management (Brown), 82

S

Serratia marcescens bacteremias in intensive care unit, contaminated heparinized saline solution as reservoir (Cleary, MacIntyre, and Castro), 107
Surveillance, infection, by medical record chart review, disadvantages (Birnbaum and King), 15
by prevalence survey in acute and long-term care institution (Latham et al.), 76

T

Temperature measurement, perforation of soft plastic thermometer sheaths during, and infection control (Valenti and Takacs), 1
Thermometer sheaths, soft plastic, perforation during temperature measurement, and infection control (Valenti and Takacs), 1
Tuberculosis, pulmonary, infectiousness of, after starting chemotherapy (Noble), 6
